Regents reaffirm support of President Dean Hubbard

BY NICK WILLIAMS
News Editor

The Board of Regents reaffirmed its support of University President Dean Hubbard at a special meeting held Saturday.

The meeting also resulted in a resolution by the Regents calling for Hubbard to take steps in reducing the division between the Northwest faculty and administration.

The Regents called for the establishment of a Campus Collegial Committee. Hubbard, in consultation with the Faculty Senate president, will appoint the committee which will represent faculty, staff, students and the administration.

According to the Regents' resolution, the goals of the committee are "to identify the components of areas of concern, to find ways to create a true collegial environment of respect and trust on the University campus, to find ways that will permit the efficient and timely achievement of the mission and goals adopted for the University by the Board of Regents..."

The resolution also says that the committee is to report its findings and progress to the Regents on May 6. The committee will also continue to work this summer "at least until it may report its findings and progress to the General

Faculty scheduled at the beginning of the 1988 fall semester."

Dr. Duane Jewell, president of the Faculty Senate, opened Saturday's Regents meeting. He reported to the Regents the results of a general faculty meeting held April 14. At the faculty meeting, the faculty voted "no confidence" in Hubbard and Academic Vice President Richard Dumont by a vote of

Tower yearbook receives award

BY JENNIFER JOHNSTON
Staff Writer

Nine Golden Circle Awards from the Columbia Scholastic Press Association were received by the 1987 Tower yearbook during a March 16-19 spring convention held in New York City.

The program is the largest individual competition in the nation for student writers, editors, designers and photographers. This year there were 13,600 entries in the competition from all over the United States.

A majority of the awards received by the 1987 Tower yearbook were for the design of the book.

The managing editor, Kevin Fullerton, won five awards and shared two. His awards included first place for color graphics and second place for spread design. Fullerton also received Certificates of Merit for the opening/closing design, a student life design and a sports design. In addition to Fullerton's awards, Chris Townsend, last year's people/organization editor, received a second place award for the people design.

Other honors given out included a third place award for color feature received by Scott Trunkhill; a Certificate of Merit for Beyond Imagination, the supplement to the yearbook, received by Debby Kerr and Colletta Neighbors; and a Certificate of Merit for the Tower index received by Fullerton and Kevin Sharpe.

"We credit ourselves with the tradition we have of winning recognition since 1979," Sharpe, production assistant, said.

Broadcasters win awards at regional conference

BY CARA MOORE
Staff Writer

Two broadcast majors received a total of three awards last weekend at the Society of Professional Journalists, Sigma Delta Chi, regional conference in Columbia.

Rob DeBolt won first place in the category of radio features with a humorous program on popular Christmas toys and novelty gifts for adults. For his five-minute feature, DeBolt visited a shopping mall and interviewed shoppers and toy store owners.

DeBolt's sweep in the category qualified his work for national competition. "I have been producing features for approximately three years and it was nice to get a tangible award in my hands," DeBolt said. "It was quite an honor to be recognized by my peers in the radio industry."

Greek games unite fraternities and s

BY CHRIS BARKER
Staff Writer

The Phi Mu sorority and the Sigma Phi Epsilon fraternity were the winners in the Greek Games held on Friday, April 15.

The competition started at 3 p.m. with the Mystery Event which included a volley-ball net, a couple of people wearing plastic bags, some aluminum pie pans, crackers and cans of whipped cream. The event lasted only a few minutes before they decided to cancel it.

Debbie Swearingin, a Delta Zeta, has participated in the games for the past three years.

"The Mystery Event was not very fun," Swearingin said. "I don't think it was well thought out and we ran out of whipped cream."

At 3:15 the volley-ball games started. Music was provided by KDLX doing a remote. People gathered behind Franken Hall to watch the events and many spectators cheered on the sorority Alpha Sigma Alpha or their competitors, the Phi Mu's.

Before the event was over the popular keg-throwing contest began. There were two participants from each fraternity who threw the keg. Sigma Phi Epsilon won the game with Brian Shran and Colin Reese throwing a 36 foot and 8 inch toss.

At 3:35 the Orange Relay started. The idea of the event was to push an orange by using another orange which hung between a participant's legs, suspended in nylon-hose and tied about the waist.

Fresh, Michelle Moore and Kim Kloewer won at the Greek Week

During the game the crowd cheered for the participants and offered helpful suggestions like, "swing your hips" and "stand facing towards the orange." Some people caught on quickly and finished way ahead of their struggling opponents.

"It makes you feel pretty funny trying to get that orange to move," said Swearingin. "Last year no one was allowed to touch the rope. You had to do everything with your hips. This time a lot of people used their hands. It gives you much more control and the game goes quicker."

The Bat Race drew a large crowd. People had to run as fast as they could around a stationary bat ten times. Then, they had to run back to where they started and tag the next person. After spinning around, the equilibrium in the runners was off balance and as they ran back, some tended to lean towards their right while others just fell to the ground.

"I felt drunk," Nathan Pruett, a member of Delta Chi, said. "I thought I drank a case of beer in two seconds."

At 4:30 the Tug-of-War started. Delta Chi won the first competition. The only surprise in the match was when Alpha Kappa Lambda let go of the rope letting the other side win while they fell to the ground.

For some the Six-Legged Race worked out very well but for others it led to disaster. The fraternity Tau Kappa Epsilon had a little trouble with coordination and ended up face first on the ground.

"We didn't have enough practice," Stuart Gorton of TKE said. "People were stepping on my feet, but the worst part of it was that I lost my hat."

Toni Wantland participated in the Pizza Eating contest. "I feel great. It will probably hit me in about a half-hour, but right now I am still hungry," she said.

Darcy Darrah gave advice on how to win the contest. "It's not how much you can eat but how much you can fit into your mouth. All you have to do is roll it up and put into your mouth and try not to throw up," Darrah said.

Competition at annual honors assembly

A new scholar-ship was in-stituted by the Maryville do-ctor C.F. Grey. The ship was in-stituted by John Cookin-son. The require-ments are said. "Dr. Grey set this up for the ship written for the ship's neat for an English away with the ship. The ship was presented by the donors' families as well. Albertini recalls the Frank W. Gruke Scholarship Award. Dr. Gruke was the chairman of the English department and retired in 1973. He started the Blue Key Honorary Fraternity and was the varsity tennis coach.

in the sweep of awards by accepting the new Mildred Eckert Wallace Scholarship for English teachers and the Marshall and Beatrix Ford Memorial Scholarship.

One of the highlights of the evening was Mr. Herbert R. Dieterich. Dieterich taught at Northwest from 1926-1969. The recipient of the award presented in his name was given the rare opportunity of meeting and "seeing the man for whom the structure was named," Albertini said.

"I really enjoy seeing the donors come back," Albertini said. "These people generate respect."

Some of the scholarships were presented by the donors' families as well. Albertini recalls the Frank W. Gruke Scholarship Award. Dr. Gruke was the chairman of the English department and retired in 1973. He started the Blue Key Honorary Fraternity and was the varsity tennis coach.

"When Cathie Jones won [this award] in '85, Gruke gave her a hug. This year when her brother Jean Jones won, Mrs. Gruke was there to reinact that scene--three years later!" Albertini said. "Since Gruke and Mr. Jones, father of the recipients, were close colleagues, it was a special touch to the whole ceremony."

Albertini has been the master of ceremonies for about nine years. He's been asked back each year by the honors assembly committee which is a high honor in itself. He ended the evening on a humorous, rather than serious, note this year.

The evening's key-note speaker was Amy Fargo-Skarin, a 1987 Northwest graduate. Most of the scholarships were given out by the respective deans of each particular college. Dr. Richard Dumont, vice-president for academic affairs, gave the welcoming address. Martha Moss, assistant for computer science/information systems, was the chairperson of the honor's assembly committee.

The Northwest support staff and administrators will have the opportunity to display their favorite hobbies and crafts during the "On Your Own Time" competition.

The Northwest entries to be judged in the contest will be on display in the Union Ballroom on May 19. Pat Giesken, who will assist with the organization of the project, said she believes this will be a good program for the support staff to become involved.

"It gives the staff the chance to know a little bit more about each other," Giesken said. "You know about your co-workers on campus, but you don't know exactly who they are, where they live or what they do on their own time."

Four categories will be open to the participants. The category of collectibles will consist of stamps, coins, baseball cards and other such items. The crafts category will include ceramics, quilting, needlework and cake decorating. The category of building and restoring involves furniture refinishing, woodworking and vehicles. The photography and arts category will contain art work, paintings, etchings and photographed works.

"In each category we will have a trophy for first place, a plaque for second place and honorable mention ribbons for others," Giesken said.

The first and second place winners from each of the four categories will go on to compete with three other area businesses for the grand prize competition to be held May 21 on the Courthouse lawn. The three businesses are Maryville Forge, Georgia Pacific and New England

Business Service.

Entries to the competition are to be taken to the Ballroom by noon on May 18 for viewing. There is no entry fee for the event.

Anyone interested in participating in the project should contact Pat Giesken at 562-1363 or Sandi Cox at 562-1128 in the University's Office of Financial Aid.

Advertising executive to speak next week

BY JANICE RHINE
Staff Writer

The Department of Home Economics will bring Pat Edwards Cafferata to Northwest as the "Professor for a Day" on Wednesday.

Cafferata will give two presentations in the Union Ballroom while she is professor. Her 9 a.m. presentation will focus on "Careers in Communication." Her 11 a.m. lecture will be on "Communicating With the Consumer."

Cafferata is currently president and chief executive officer of Young and Rubicam advertising agency in Chicago.

The agency is the largest privately owned advertising agency in the world.

In 1986, Cafferata was named "Chicago Advertising Woman of the Year." At the time she received the award she was the senior vice president and research director of Needham Harper Worldwide in Chicago.

Being "Professor for a Day" will reverse Cafferata's previous role at Northwest. She graduated from the University in 1969 with a degree in vocational home economics.

Instructor to take part in Shakespeare criticism

A Northwest associate professor of English will attend a program called "New Directions in Shakespeare Criticism" this summer.

Dr. Sara Eaton was one of 15 people in the U.S. selected to participate in the Folger Institute's program. From June 21 to July 28, Eaton will visit the Folger Shakespeare Library in Washington D.C.

The program on Shakespeare criticism has several goals. Some of these goals are to investigate the contexts and approaches of current criticism of plays by Shakespeare, study methods of application to the plays, and to share and create suggestions for practice in the classroom.

The participants will compare different theories and see if they are compatible or divergent. They will also study theories in texts and learn how to encourage student responses to Shakespeare's plays.

The Folger Institute is a center for study and research in the humanities that is co-sponsored by 22 universities. They have an extensive and large collection of English books from the Renaissance to the twentieth century.

The faculty cited several issues of concern at Thursday's faculty meeting. The issues included the bypassing of University governance, the tenuring of academic deans without the benefit of peer evaluation, lack of respect for faculty views by the administration and the recommendations of the Faculty Rank committee not being endorsed by the University's administration.

The Regents also accepted a petition from 824 students which declared "no confidence" in both Hubbard and Dumont.

A third-place certificate in the division of in-depth reporting was also awarded to DeBolt. His three-part series on fitness spotlighted Northwest's new Wellness Center in Lamkin Gymnasium.

Sigma Delta Chi member Diana Acton was also recognized at the awards ceremony with a second-place honor in the in-depth reporting category. In addition to that award, her report on alcoholism recently received a top award from the Northwest Chapter of the Missouri Public Health Association in Kansas City.

For her story, Acton interviewed a 16-year-old reformed alcoholic, as well as the Missouri Attorney General concerning legal aspects of alcoholism and a representative from the Epley Treatment Center about alcohol programs.

Acton and DeBolt originally produced their programs to air on KXCV's "Midwest Corners," a show which they host. Both students are announcers for KXCV.

DeBolt felt the awards they received served as recognition for their work at KXCV since they have few competitive opportunities for individual programs.

The competition Northwest students were up against included the University of Missouri-Columbia, Central Missouri State University, Northeast Missouri State University, Kansas University, University of Southern Illinois and University of Nebraska-Lincoln.

Stroller bids farewell to campus insanity

What a bummer. They just told me that this is going to be the last paper our illustrious newspaper staff is putting out this year. I've been walking around in a daze all day today just thinking about it. Its as if a part of me is officially being put to rest. No more slamming public officials. No more hazing campus safety, or even the idea of law enforcement as a whole.

What will I do? Will I be tossed into the heap of outcast writers, never to be heard from again? No, I won't let it happen to me. I'll fight back.... I'll write highly opinionated letters to the editor every week in hopes of causing public unrest. To somehow seek out injustice. After all, isn't that the American way?

What the hell.... It's my last week. I'm going for it. Who should I verbally molest this week? Campus Safety... President Hubbard... How about the teachers? I would just like to know what their problem is. Every year they do the same damn thing. They wait until finals week is only two weeks away and they dish out numerous forms of cruel and inhuman punishment. Those vicious work sluts. How dare they put a crimp in my partying schedule.

Speaking of partying, I've got something hilarious to pass along to you. Some unbelievably goofy person wrote an anonymous letter to the editor of the Missourian with an attached sheed addressed the Stroller warning me of the harmful effects of drug abuse. Obviously this person has never partied like a pig until the wee hours of the morning with a good bottle of rum and a chesty woman who engages in strenuous physical activities. Oh well, everyone is entitled to their opinion, even if it means insulting my somewhat abusive and demeaning intelligence.

Somehow, it seems customary that I should address our beloved President Dean Hubbard.... I'm not going to be mean to Dean, because he's had it kind of rough lately. Everybody seems to be picking on him. I would like to set the record straight. My opinion in no way reflects the attitude of the Missourian. I hold myself accountable for all my actions, unless of course I'm under the influence of drugs or alcohol. Sometimes I have to fall back on my weak abilities like that when I wake up in strange and mysterious places.

But seriously, Mr. President, I would like to go out on a good note with you. Maybe we could get together sometime and do this lunch thing. Stranger things have happened. The next time you and the faculty get together for a backyard cook-out/bash, maybe you could drop me a line at the Missourian and we could slam brewskis and roast some dogs.

Campus Safety.... I'm sorry for all the mental anguish I may have caused throughout the course of the semester. If it wasn't for you guys, I wouldn't have anything to write about. I think it has something to do with all those tickets you issued me my freshman year.... All that pent-up anger just itching to be released through my keyboard. Maybe we'll meet up again somewhere under different circumstances. I'd love to party with you guys, but I'm still leary of the time one of your overzealous members bashed me over the head with a flashlight. I just didn't feel like being arrested that night.... I was tired.

Looking back on all these mad-capped adventures brings a tear to my eye. Graduation is almost upon me. What will I do? Will I straighten out my act and head down the path of righteousness. God, I hope not.

I hope I'm still chugging swill, seducing women and making life miserable for people who irritate me when I'm forty.

Hopefully we'll be over this AIDS epidemic real soon, and casual sex will once again become a permanent fixture in our society. I'm counting the days until rubbers will once again be optional.

How did I get onto the topic of AIDS? I was right in the middle of delivering my farewell address. It took some thought, but somehow I managed to come up with a Last Will and Testament.

To Molly, the editor of the paper, I leave you a blank check from the Northwest Foundation Account, so you can safely make it out of the country, free from prosecution in the Northwest Missouri area. Thank you for putting up with all my crap.

To the Rent-A-Cops, I leave you my dead battery and one bullet, in hopes that someday you will become real cops.

And to you the students, I leave you my attitude in never letting all this bureaucratic B.S. push you around.

As we part ways, I would like to wish everyone a prosperous summer with hopes that you'll spend your money on better things than I will. Also rest up because if next semester is anything like the one we're having now, we're going to need all the energy we can get. Hopefully the faculty will chill and be mellowed out by next fall. As for me, I'll be out creating more mad-capped drug-infested adventures on the open road.

Oh, by the way, Dean.... You have a good summer, too.

'AND THE TRUTH SHALL SET YOU FREE...'

BY MOLLY ROSSITER
Editor in Chief

In the chaotic world of classes, roommates and administration, the thing students need most is truth—from the faculty, from the administration, and from other students.

On the front of the Administration Building is a sign that states, "And The Truth Shall Set You Free." A visitor to this campus could see this and assume that the students of Northwest are being well informed of the things they need to know.

The job of the Northwest Missourian, or any other college newspaper, is to present the facts to the students. If this means putting someone on the spot, then that is what must be done. However, no reporter intentionally sets out to damage anyone's reputation. The reporter's position is to report the news as it happens and to let the students know exactly what the facts are concerning campus activities.

However, some campus personalities believe that some things should not be reported to the students. By withholding certain information from the students, the administration, or whoever else is doing it, is violating the students' rights to know what is happening. Expecting the Missourian to withhold any knowledge on any of these issues is not only a violation of student rights, but a violation of free press as well.

Freedom of the Press is a constitutional right, regardless of the publication's social standing (college newspaper vs. town paper). With this right newspapers are guaranteed the freedom to print anything considered newsworthy, as long as it is presented in a professional manner. The manner in which the Missourian presents any of its material is done according to the book. As student journalists we are not only learning the true meaning of ethics and responsibility but we are experiencing it. Trying to control our given rights hampers that learning—an ironic situation to arise in a learning institution such as this.

Students have the right to know what changes the administration is making and just what those changes will mean to them. It is the intention of the Missou-rian to realize this right and see that the students are kept informed of any changes made, as well as other happenings on campus. That is the goal of any newspaper—to present the facts to the so that they may be aware. It is not the job of a newspaper form an opinion for the reader, but to present all the facts so that the reader can decide for himself.

In order for the Missourian to continue to supply its readers with facts, support is needed. When the administration refuses to stand behind the student press, it is refusing to stand behind the students of Northwest. Students need to feel their administration is doing what it can to help, not trying to hide information that could be vital to a students future.

Letters to the Editor

Instructor defends student concerning interview

Dear Editor,

The three part series on the Culture of Quality written by Nick Williams stemmed from a small group discussion assignment given by me to a Speech 102 class. The class was divided into groups and each group was told to pick a discussion topic. The topics ranged from AIDS testing, to terrorism at the Olympics, to the Culture of Quality. In order to understand the Culture of Quality document, the group Nick was in interviewed President Hubbard. It was not a debate assignment; it was an attempt to understand a document currently under campus-wide discussion. Nick had permission from me to use the assignment both for my class and for a series of newspaper articles.

1. Nick told me that he told President Hubbard that he was also the news editor for the Missourian and asked if he could tape the interview and use the material in an article. He said President Hubbard told him that the material could be taped and so used. The tape recorder was set up on the President's conference room table in front of President Hubbard. Other members of the discussion group present at the interview have verified that Nick identified himself as news editor and received permission to tape and use the material.

2. A copy of the audio tape of the interview with President Hubbard was turned in to me, along with the papers, etc., as part of the class assignment. The quotations from the interview in Nick's article were not taken out of context. The context was the Culture of Quality document and reaction to it. President Hubbard made the argument that "tenure is, in my judgement, an anachronism and ought to be abolished." This apparently because tenure, in President Hubbard's opinion, can adversely affect quality. I have a copy of the tape if anyone would like to verify contextual accuracy.

Sincerely,
Dr. Roy V. Leeper

Negative attitude strikes response from alumnus

Dear Editor,

It was with disgust that I read the article on the first page of the April 9 issue of the Daily Forum concerning the lack of a vote of confidence for the University's administration. I have almost 200 hours of credits from the University, which includes both undergraduate and graduate degrees. I have also taught for 30 years. I feel that I am qualified to comment on the unrest among some of the University faculty.

I have closely followed the activities of the University for many years. It has been my observation that the school has grown in stature every year. It has also been my privilege to have known personally the University presidents during this time. Changes must be made if the University provides the quality of education which today's world demands.

A few weeks ago it was my privilege to visit the Horace Mann school. Certainly changes have been made since I attended and taught in a rural grade school. I was almost overcome by what I saw at Horace Mann. My comment was, "Grade school was not like this when I was grade-school age." The up-to-date teaching methods were impressive. It is a real privilege for Maryville and the surrounding areas to have such quality education.

We are now living in a faster world. Technological changes must be made. We all get accustomed to doing things in the "same old way." We all want a better way of life, but we are reluctant to change in order to make it better. It is not always easy to make changes. It requires us to do research and revise the ways in which we are accustomed to work and live.

The real comment I want to make is that we should be supporting the strengths of the University rather than always looking at the negative. If you do not like college teaching, try high school teaching which includes longer hours and less pay.

Sincerely,
Mary Wagner
Class of 1931

Reaction to administration believed unreasonable

Dear Editor,

I am writing to encourage reasonable behavior in a situation that has become completely unreasonable. I am referring to the vote of "No Confidence" for President Dean Hubbard and the uproar it has inspired.

From the attitudes that seem to be prevalent—or at least most loudly voiced—on this campus, it would appear that the University community has turned against the president. However, a large segment of the student body has not been heard from.

I, as a student, believe mistakes have been made by both the president and the faculty in handling several issues. But it also seems as though the problems could be resolved. The drastic action called for by the faculty would be a giant step backward for this institution.

It would be extremely unfortunate if all of the president's plans were negated by overreaction to issues that are peripheral to his performance as a leader. Areas of discrepancy such as tenure and the faculty's role in decision making are important and must be addressed. But they must be addressed in a sane, forward-thinking manner. The knee-jerk responses of some faculty members are kicking the University where it hurts most: in its ability to help students deal with a changing world.

The Culture of Quality is a fine piece of work, overall, and I cannot understand how faculty members can be against anything that could improve the quality of undergraduate education. Isn't that supposedly the business to which they have devoted their careers? By voting "No Confidence" in President Hubbard, they have jeopardized all of the ideas that could make this University outstanding. Whether the "No Confidence" was about the Culture of Quality or not, it has obviously hurt the progress made by the document.

Consider where this institution was four years ago. Then consider where it is now—or was before the faculty turned it into a Culture of Controversy. Last fall, it seemed Northwest was making real strides. The Electronic Campus and Culture of Quality were receiving a great deal of publicity, and it actually seemed as though we were making progress. Northwest was becoming a place to be proud of. Now, all that is in danger of falling apart because of heated tempers and wounded egos. People need to be thinking more of the quality of the institution and less about their personal motives. Is more money and less work time really worth ditching a great plan?

In an interview earlier this semester for Tower yearbook, President Hubbard told me that when he tempered the job he did because of what people are willing to pay, he'd get out of education and into the pizza business. Considering their actions last week, I feel some faculty members should be driving Domino's trucks next semester.

Dr. John Hopper has said that this is a university, not a monarchy. True. But it also should not be an anarchy, and it cannot be a democracy. A university is a business, albeit a unique one. President Hubbard was chosen to make planning decisions for the campus, and that is what he has done.

The planning system may have left out faculty input where it was necessary, but that points to a managerial problem, not a problem with Hubbard's programs overall. Furthermore, the faculty receives more input in University policies than employees in any other business.

It is impossible for me to understand ousting an administrator because you disagree with his management style. Those are the kinds of problems rational people try to work out from within the system instead of tearing the system itself apart.

The point is this: Faculty members, please consider why you voted "No Confidence" in the president. Were the reasons really valid enough to risk damaging the institution itself?

Students, also please let your opinions be known. It is easy to jump on the bandwagon, but think about it. Consider the image of the institution, if nothing else. I would much rather have a degree from the University of the Electronic Campus and Culture of Quality than from the University of the "No Confidence" vote. How about you?

Sincerely,
Mike Dunlap

Funds to benefit camp

A walk-a-thon, radio-thon and Picasso Art Show are a few special events being held on Saturday, April 30, to raise money for Camp Quality.

Camp Quality is a camp for children with cancer. This year the camp will be from June 19-24.

The campers are between the ages of 4-18 and their cancer is in a state of remission. However, one physician and five nurses are available at all times. Each camper has a companion, and a dorm parent with some medical training is in each cabin.

The program originated in 1983 in Sydney, Australia. Camp Quality Director Kay Jenson, from Barnard, Mo., helped to bring it to northwest Missouri.

Assistand Directors, Ed and Lavina Jones of Mound City, Mo., turned to Dr. Kathie Leeper, chairperson of the speech department at Northwest, for help in publicizing it. She, in turn, let her Public Relations class "take the theory they had learned in the classroom and use it to implement an actual campaign."

Members of the class include Christi Mathews, Carrie Prewitt, Todd Spitzmiller, Deb Harris, Jim Inman and Larry Garcia.

The Public Relations class, along with Mayor W.R. O'Reilly and University President Dean L. Hubbard are declaring April 30 as Camp Quality Day.

Lollipop Picasso, co-sponsored by the Department of Art, is one of the events to raise money. A display of artwork by children in the child development at Northwest, will be available for purchase by donations. All donations will go to Camp Quality.

Starting at 11 a.m., a walk-a-thon will start at the courthouse. The participants will walk through several of the city's parks with the final destination at the Memorial Bell Tower on campus.

From 11 a.m. to 3 p.m. KNIM Radio Station in Maryville will have a radio-thon. More than 40 taped interviews will be aired for four hours. The interviews include doctors, nurses and others personally associated with the camp. Donations can also be made by calling the station.

Thanks to the hard work of students, faculty and organizations that care, Camp Quality is receiving the needed coverage and funds so kids with cancer can enjoy a week of fun and activities just like other kids.

Movie theme reappears

BY BRAD FRISCH
Staff Writer

No, it's not the first movie of its kind, and more than likely it won't be the last. In fact, there has been a recent onslaught of movies revolving around the idea of a adult becoming a child and a child becoming an adult.

The idea was picked up by some demented soul somewhere and now the idea has turned into an out-of-control monster sure to be equipped with sequels and matching sound-tracks. Everyone and their dog have been working around the clock to come up with new twists and angles to use.

However, the same basic plot remains, except for the neat little tricks and personal expressions thrown in by the director, producer or whomever the force may be.

Along the way we are introduced to new, cute little child stars and reacquainted with adult actors who seem to have a flair for comedy.

Eventually this idea is going to burn itself out in the Hollywood ionosphere, only to exist perpetually on video tape for future generations to watch.

Aside from the general bad attitude just put forth, the latest in this genre of movies, entitled "Vice Versa", was put together very well and can succeed at being very funny at times.

Sure, like I said, basically it's the same plot; dad and son switch places, dad goes to school, son takes dad's job as corporate vice president, troubles abound everywhere, dad and son eventually solve the small problem and as usual, you have a basic happy ending.

But besides these things, there are several little twists thrown in for good measure. Dad, who is played superbly by Judge Reinhold, and son, played equally as well by Fred Savage, switch places by making a wish while holding a Tibetan idol supposed to have magical powers. But, unbeknownst to the duo, it really does have magical powers and their wish is granted, much to Reinhold's chagrin and Savage's child-induced enthusiasm.

However, the idol was stolen and it mistakenly ends up in this unlikely pair's hands, and the bad guys want it back. That's complication number one.

Some other obstacles include Reinhold's job as a major manufacturer's vice president. Reinhold, with the brain of a seventh grader, has no idea how to carry out his job duties (but handles himself remarkably well in a conference meeting). Savage's life as an undergrown, picked on seventh grader, which in his adult mind can't fathom at times, and various other little problems that life has to offer.

Reinhold and Savage work remarkably well together and the whole show comes off great because of this. They actually convince you that they have become the other one.

The plot, however, drags in a few places, but I don't want to be nit-picky. For the most part the script flowed nicely and we are thrust into many hilarious situations where even the hardest to please person would at least chuckle.

It's probably not the movie to see if you're out with the boys feeling rowdy, but a good one to take a date to, if you feel like spending the money on her.

Group proves successful

The Northwest Department of Music will present the Tower/University Chorale concerts Sunday, April 24, in the Mary Linn Performing Arts Center.

A special feature of this year's performance is three faculty solos. Northwest Department of music professors Ernest Kramer, Dr. Patricia Shultz and Dr. Stephen Town will perform during the Tower Choir's portion of the concert.

The faculty soloists will perform in Joseph Haydn's "Mass in D Minor." Also, Tower Choir Quartets will feature Northwest students LeAnn Johnson, Julie Wilmoth, Sheryl Warren, Georann Collins, Kyle Gordon, Ken Webb, John Edmonds and Stephen Nehring.

During the last selection by the Tower Choir, flutists April Newquist and Michelle Hatcher will perform.

After intermission, the University Chorale will perform several numbers including "Down by the Riverside" which will feature an instrumental ensemble of Ky Hascall, tuba; Joel Hughes, drums; Stephanie Epp, piano; Melissa Cummins, clarinet; Jodie Winters, saxophone; Jim Johnson, trombone; and Bob Brue, trombone.

Town will again perform during the University Chorale's performance of "Requiem" by Gabriel Faure.

The Tower Choir is a select group of 37 members, and the 118-member University Chorale is open to all Northwest students.

Fitness group successful

An idea that was lightly suggested by some broadcast students became a successful reality for Kirsten Knoll.

Knoll is the executive producer of "Fitness Express," an aerobic workout show on KNWT Channel 8.

The program is shown three times a day at 6:30 a.m., noon and 6 p.m.

Knoll submitted a written proposal to Fred Lamar, chairman of the Department of Mass Communications. After he approved it, she recruited students from TV Practicum class to help her.

"The students were really willing to help," said Knoll. "They were enthusiastic about the idea."

Knoll had several reasons for doing a fitness show.

"I really wanted to see a show like this for all on and off campus students," she said. "I was, at the time, doing aerobics from a cable channel. I thought if it could be shown at student times, it would be more appealing."

Knoll said the show has done well and will probably gain added popularity every semester it is on.

Kathleen Gimbel and Venus Harris are the aerobic teachers for the show. The two women appear on the show on alternate days doing different workouts to add variety to the show.

Other participants include Ruth Gillespie, T.J. Holliday, Angela Howard, Joanne Beattie, Jescia Casimir, Michelle Schwartz and Tammy Freeman.

Production to premiere

A stage play that "alternates between deceptive charm and sudden violence" will be performed by the University's Department of Theatre and Alpha Psi Omega, the student theatre honorary.

"Wait Until Dark" is a classic suspense thriller about a blind housewife, Susy Hendrix (Kathryn Pace), who is left alone when her photographer husband, Sam Hendrix (Jeff Allen), leaves on business. She mistakenly becomes in possession of a doll filled with heroin which a gang of criminals (Jeff Haney, Jerry Genocchio and Don Matthews) want.

"Wait Until Dark" is a Frederick Knott stage play. Knott is also known for his plays "Dial M for Murder" and "Write Me A Murder." The movie version of "Wait Until Dark" starred Audrey Hepburn, Alan Arkin, Richard Crenna and Efram Zimbalist Jr.

Other cast members include Micki Neuerburg, Eric Willis and Gary Soukup. Carla Weseman will serve as Susy's understudy and David J. Kramer is the men's understudy. Christine Moellenberndt is the understudy for Neuerburg.

Gerald B. Browning is the student director of "Wait Until Dark." Assisting him is Felecia Taylor.

The thriller will be performed Friday and Saturday, April 22-23 at 7:30 and Sunday, April 24 at 2 p.m. A special showing will be held Saturday night at midnight. All performances will be in the Charles Johnson Theatre.

Tickets are $4 for adults, $3 for students and $2 with a Northwest ID card. Reservations may be made by calling 562-1320 or tickets may be purchased directly at the Mary Linn Box Office.

Northwest finds themselves in the middle of the conference race with the MIAA tournament set to begin. The 'Kittens open the tourney on Friday against Central. Photo by Shawn Wake.

MIAA tourney set to begin

BY KELLIE WATT
Managing Editor

The Bearkitten softball team was defeated by Northeast Missouri State University in two 1-0 games at Beal Park last Tuesday. The 'Kittens are now at 17-20.

In the first game, Northeast scored the only run. The 'Kittens attempted a come-back twice in the game putting potential scoring runs on the bases but failed.

The Lady Bulldogs held the lead right down to the eighth strikeout by winning pitcher Keitha Pickrell of Northeast. With a record of 15-4, Pickrell allowed just three hits from the Bearkitten team. 'Kitten pitcher Chris Blankenau (11-10) allowed five hits, one walk and struck out seven.

The only hits recorded for the 'Kittens were singles by Lara Andersen, Tiffany Davenport and a double from Debbie Root.

The scoring was late in the the second game against Northeast. The Lady Bulldogs scored the game's only run in the fifth inning. Amy Erickson made the only hit for the 'Kittens with an infield single. 'Kitten pitcher Julee Hanna, whose record fell to 6-7 with the loss, gave up only four hits and struck out one.

The Bearkittens swept two in Bolivar, Mo. last Friday against Lincoln University, 7-0 and Southwest Baptist 5-3. By the seven-run rule, the 'Kittens defeated Lincoln University after four and one half innings.

Laura Brichetto started scoring for Northwest with a two-run double in the second inning. The team scored five more runs in the fourth.

Bearkitten pitcher Hanna pitched her first college shutout in five innings, allowing one hit and had three strikeouts.

The 'Kittens brought home another victory for the record against Southwest Baptist. Southwest controlled scoring up until the sixth inning when Sani Jensen and Brichetto made RBI singles. The 'Kittens scored two more runs in the seventh.

Winning pitcher Blankenau pitched seven innings and allowed seven hits and three runs, advancing her record to 11-9.

Penny Moberly raised her season's average to .341 by hitting 4-5 total in the day and 3-4 in this game. Moberly also was credited with a double and an RBI.

The Bearkittens open their 1988 Missouri Intercollegiate Athletic Association post-season tournament play tomorrow against Central Missouri State University. The game will be at 1:30 p.m. in Jackson, Mo. near Cape Girardeau.

Volunteers Needed for Camp Quality

Camp Quality is for children with cancer. No fee is charged to the children attending. There are three basic purposes to the camp. The first is to allow children with cancer to BE children again. The second is to give the families a much needed rest, knowing their children are happy and getting adequate medical supervision. The final reason is to make the experience such fun that the children will look forward to the reunion and their next camp. However, for the camp to be successful, companions are needed for the campers. At this moment, male companions are needed the most.

Camp Quality begins June 19 and ends June 24.

Northwest sweeps JCCC

Tennis teams set to defend crowns

BY TROY APOSTOL

This weekend proves to be the test for both the men's and women's tennis squads. Both will travel to the Lodge of the Four Seasons in Eldon, Mo. to defend their MIAA championships titles at the conference championships this weekend.

The squads fine tuned their championship hopes by sweeping Johnson County Community College in an exhibition match last Tuesday in Maryville.

The Bearkittens staked JCCC to a 9-0 victory. The clean sweep saw victories in singles matches for all of Northwest seeds. Kelly Leintz, Carie Correll, Ann Arts, Amy Anderson, Patty Dingfield and Vickie Hollander were all victorious for Northwest.

The 'Kittens also swept the doubles matches with the teams of Correll and Anderson, Leintz and Arts and Hollander and Lawrence all picking up victories.

The Bearcats took a 7-2 victory in the men's match. Paul Elliot, Rafal Wojcik, Jorge Castilla and Antonio Becerra were all victorious for the 'Cats. Rob Veasey and Mike Berger suffered the only losses of the match. Both those losses came in singles matches.

Northwest took a clean sweep of the doubles matches with victories earned by the teams of Elliot and Castilla, Becerra and Hale and Wojcik and Veasey.

Monday saw the Bearcats take an 8-1 victory over William Jewell in Liberty.

William Jewell opened by taking the first seed, a 6-2, 6-0 victory over Becerra. But Northwest took over the match and saw singles victories by Elliot, Wojcik, Castilla, Veasey and Berger. Then Northwest took complete dominance of the doubles matches.

On Friday and Saturday both squads were at Edwardsville, Ill. The 'Kittens defeated Tennessee-Martin on Friday by a 5-4 score. Leintz, Correll, Anderson and Hollander picked up Northwest victories in the singles round. On Saturday the 'Kittens fell to Notre Dame by a 6-0 score.

The Bearcats were also victorious on Friday with a 7-2 defeat of Mankato State. Norell, Elliot, Wojcik, Castilla and Veasey picked up victories in the singles round. Saturday saw the 'Cats lose to host SIU-Edwardsville by an identical 7-2 score. Wojcik and Castilla earned the only wins for the 'Cats in the match.

Northwest hosts endurance invite Shannon Tucker and Desiree Orwig took top honors at the Herschel Neil Decathlon and Heptathlon. The event was held Sunday and Monday at Rickenbrode Stadium.

Tucker, an ex Southwest Missouri State track and field athlete, won the event with 6,296 points. Jarod Burge from Doane College finished second with 6,124 points.

Two members of the Bearcat track squad competed in the event. Kelly Zart, running in only his second decathlon, finished with 5,136 points ranking him in fifth place in the 11-man event.

Orwig, a student from William Penn College, defended her championship with 4,399 points. It was the second year in a row that Orwig won the women's event.

Three women started the event but only two were able to finish. The second place finish went to Northwest's Marion Daniel, who finished the event with 2,878 points.

Both Orwig and Daniel were able to set meet records. Orwig set a record in the 100 meter hurdles with a time of 15.30 seconds. Daniel set a new record in the shot put with a distance of 38 feet, 5 inches.

Daniel kept herself busy throughout the weekend. On Friday, she competed on the Bearkitten squad in the non-scoring Tarkio Dual meet.

Daniel, Lisa Basich, Stephanie Johnson, Kim Spriggs, Yolanda Alexander, Kathy Timmerman and Leticia Gilbert all turned in first-place finishes in the event.

Asa Young, Bob Sundell, Rob Golston, Doug Pilcher, Mark Van-Sickle, Rob Finegan, Lloyd Hunt, Steve Moore, John Jewett and Dwayne Young had first place finishes for the 'Cats.

Amy Anderson, the 'Kittens all-time career winning player, will be a key player if the 'Kittens

Central takes lead 'Cats reach 30-win plateau

BY TROY APOSTOL

The battle for home field in the Northern Division playoffs continues to heat up. Both Northwest and Central Missouri State are vying for the home field in the conference baseball championship tournament.

But for Northwest to win they will have to overpower the Mules, who continue to hold the spot as king of the hill in the conference.

Northwest did not help matters any when they split a doubleheader to Northeast Missouri State University last Saturday in Kirksville.

The doubleheader was both a triumph and a tragedy for the Bearcats. With the victory in the first game the 'Cats moved their overall record to 30-11. This mark made them only the third team in Northwest history to go over the 30-victory plateau.

But their 8-4 loss in the second game, coupled with a Central sweep of Lincoln University, dropped the 'Cats to one game below the Mules in the Northern division standings.

In the first game, the 'Cats jumped out to a 3-0 lead in the opening inning. Northwest was held scoreless until they iced the 6-4 victory with three runs in the top of the seventh.

Darrin Kregel moved his record to 6-2 with the victory. Manual Garcia took the loss for the Bulldogs.

Northeast answered the opening inning with a single run. Both teams were held scoreless until the bottom of the third when Northeast tied the game 3-3 with two runs.

Northeast took the lead in the bottom of the fifth with a single run, and held that lead until the Northwest seventh when the 'Cats took permanent control of a 6-4 lead.

In the second game, Northwest jumped out to a 1-0 lead on an RBI single by Ron Czanstkowski. Northeast answered back with two runs in the bottom of the inning and never found themselves looking back. The Bulldogs went on to an 8-4 victory.

Nick Steiner took the victory for the Bulldogs while starter Steve Nelson took his third loss for the Bearcats. Nelson was relieved by Tim Walters in the fifth inning. Nelson was removed from the game after giving up five runs on four hits and walking four.

Last Thursday found the 'Cats in Topeka, Ks. sweeping a doubleheader from Washburn University. While the non-conference games did not help the 'Cats in the MIAA standings, it did help them come closer to the 30-game mark.

Northwest's bats hammered Washburn pitching to take a 16-5 victory in the opening game.

The 'Cats got all the runs they needed with a four-run outburst in the first inning. Scott Spurgeon highlighted the inning by hitting his 15th home run of the year, a two-run shot.

Northwest gradually widened the lead with unique play. Runs were scored in numerous fashions, including a steal of home by Warren Jones in the third, a grand slam home run by Dan Segel in the fifth and a hit batsman in the sixth.

The second game was an 8-4 Bearcat victory marked by another Spurgeon two-run homer. The 'Cats took control of the game early by jumping out to a 6-0 lead in the second inning.

Starter Roger Hughes continued to be unstoppable for the Bearcats. Hughes moved his record to 7-0 in going the distance for the victory.

Every grand production has its own prescreening. While a college football team from the NCAA Division II might not seem like a grand production on paper, the turmoil and hard luck that the team has experienced over the past few seasons creates tremendous interest.

The interest falls onto the expectations of the Bearcat football squad. After three straight losing seasons, a change of head coach and a scholarship probation many questions remain among the fans of Northwest football.

Those fans will get the ability to at least get a look at next season's squad when the 'Cats hold an inner-squad scrimmage this Saturday at Rickenbrode Stadium. The game, which kicks off at 1:30, replaces the varsity-alumni games that have been played in the past.

First year head coach "Bud" Elliot will introduce a new-look offense to those in attendance this Saturday. The offense will center around a triple-option with a line up in the wishbone formation.

Junior Tom Kruse is expected to start at quarterback for the green squad. Charles Watson and Ed Freed are currently battling for the starting job of signal caller for the white squad.

Defensively the 'Cats will hold the same look of years past. Northwest will line up in a 3-4 alignment. Elliot feels that good progress has been made with the defense this spring, especially in the secondary and with the linebackers.

Peter Rameh has a stranglehold on the starting job of placekicker. But the spring game could be very influential in setting a starter at punter.

Elliot relied on the know-how of four current players in setting up the lineups for both squads. Kyle Ebers and Robert Goldman set the lineup for the green team while Tony Harper and Harold Brown decided on the players for the white team.

The event is part of the Bearcats' annual spring football weekend. Activities for the weekend will start at noon with the annual "Coach of the Year Football Clinic". The weekend will culminate with an alumni/Booster Club Bar-B-Que at 5:00 p.m. on Saturday. Fifty to sixty area high school coaches are expected.
